

David Goewey DuBou

Director of Sales & Education - Indigenous Selections

Over the last 20 years, David has traveled much of the world studying and collaborating with iconic winemakers and Master Sommeliers. Today, as the Director of Sales and Education for Indigenous Selections, David's focus and passion is Italy.

Indigenous Selections is a family of exceptional Italian producers who are all farmers first. Each producer firmly believes that great wines are grown, not made. Everything we do at Indigenous Selections comes from a winemaker's perspective, as we are a unique import company that is owned and managed by an Italian winemaker.

I have a real passion for wine and I hate bios. But there is a constant need to prove your worth in the modern wine world.

So with that in mind...

For over 20 years,

I've traveled the world's wine regions and dug in their dirt.

I've worked harvests.

I've interned at wineries and cellars.

I've collaborated with winemakers on the final blends for vintages.

I've developed concepts for vineyards that lead to the creation of new prestige wines.

I've designed labels.

I've help to curate prestigious distribution portfolios.

I've been invited to the James Beard house as a Sommelier.

I've been blessed to work with oh so many talented chefs on so many memorable dinners.

I've studied and collaborated with Masters.

I've forgotten too much to remember.

And now I work with an amazing iconic Italian winemaker and oeno-entrepreneur whose talent and vision are the things of legend.

Why...because wine is spiritual love of art, philosophy, history, geography, science, debate, and divine storytelling. These are things I must express to others.
